"BLACK FEAR" ATTRACTION
ON SCHEEN AT COLONIAL

"Black Fear" was the Colonial attraction yesterday that crowded this theater throughout the day and evening performances. This feature contains an all-ster cast, headed by Grace Elliston, Grace Valentine, Edward Brennan, Paul Everton, Mayme Kelso, John Tansey and other screen and stage artists. The story is strikingly novel and deals with the fast-growing cocaine habit in New York and other large cities, "Black Fear" will be the Colonial's attraction again to-day.

For to-morrow and Saturday, "The Fourth Estate," a William Fox feature story, is the Colonial's announcement. The atmosphere of a newspaper plant figures conspicuously in the dramatic action. It was originally written by Joseph Medill Patterson for the legitimate stage, and was made into a film story under the direction of Frank Powell, with Ruth Blair, Clifford Bruce and Samuel Ryan portraying the principal characters, and Alfred Hickman, Victor Benoit and Aline Bartlett in their support. The entire plant of the Cheane Herall was resent. in their support. The entire plant of the Chicago Herald was used in the, screening of this play.
